The Los Cerritos Wetlands Authority (LCWA) is pleased to host the first public meeting for its upcoming restoration project located in Seal Beach, California. The meeting will be held via zoom on Tuesday, December 10, at 6:30 P.M., and will feature a presentation entitled, “Southern Los Cerritos Wetlands Restoration Project: Past, Present, Future.” We will be taking a quick look back at the historical ecology of the Alamitos Bay, discussing existing conditions of the project site, and providing information about the upcoming restoration project. There will be numerous opportunities during the presentation to ask questions or offer remarks. The meeting will conclude with the release of an online survey, designed to solicit public opinion about potential public access components.

The Southern Los Cerritos Wetlands Restoration Project (SLCWRP) is located off Pacific Coast Highway and First Street, generally adjacent to the Haynes Cooling Channel and Seal Beach residential communities, Marina Hill and Heron Pointe. Restoration of the 103.5 acre site will be conducted in two phases. In 2023, the LCWA received approximately $32.5 million in grant funding to implement Phase 1.

Specifically, the funding will be used to finalize design plans, obtain remaining permits, and implement the Phase 1 restoration. This restoration will focus on using the existing tidal connection to the San Gabriel River to enhance existing salt marsh habitat. Additionally, community engagement will be conducted throughout the process, with the LCWA hosting a series of events, including webinars, a workshop, an open house, and several mixers.

It's time for the tides. All are encouraged to (virtually) attend and learn about this exciting project.
